

Communications with Remarkable Beings

Through David Furlong

6 January to 13 January

Background

This communication or channelling is a follow on from H-As last communication and relates to the evolution of consciousness through the nature kingdoms and specifically the role 'elemental' beings within this picture.

H-A

We now come on to consider the nature of that consciousness which sits behind the structures of your world and going one stage further the consciousness that binds the physical universe together. As some of your scientists have rightly stated consciousness flows through everything and what you perceive as physical reality is a 'mental' construct. We would like you to reflect on that idea for a moment and then take yourself back to the origins of your known universe, which you have called the 'Big Bang'. We would suggest to you that the impulse that brought this universe into being was an expression of conscious intent. This was no accident but the manifestation of collective 'thought', with singular resolve from a Supreme level. Your universe has purpose woven into its structure that relates, in myriads of ways, to the evolution of consciousness. We use the term 'your' universe deliberately because although we are part of it, we also have access to and experience other universes. Those of your scientists that talk about the plurality of universes have an inkling of what we mean. Consciousness brought your universe into being, and consciousness weaves through every element of its manifestation.

When considering the physical structure of your world, you are aware of the apparent solidity of its densest structures, such as the ground you walk upon, the air you breathe, the water you drink and the warmth of the life-giving Sun that sustains your planet. These structures appear solid from your perspective and, indeed, from the inhabitants of the many species that reside in your world. Yet you also know from your scientists that what seems solid originates from dynamic particles that operate within the sub-atomic world.

Researches into quantum mechanics have come a long way in giving insights into this realm and the seeming paradoxes that it presents. The fixation into exploring physicality devoid of a relationship to consciousness has led up some blind alleys and being part of the disconnect between human beings and the spiritual realms. Perhaps the word 'spirituality' has become a pejorative concept for some, so another way of looking at this process would be to envision that conscious beings stand behind and operate through everything that you 'see' with your physical eyes. Most people cannot 'see' their thoughts, but they know that they exist. Your manifestation of thought occurs through the many tools or works of art that you collectively create. This creative process is endemic throughout your universe. You have borrowed a physical body, from the elements of nature, to experience physicality. Yet your true essence as a singular conscious entity does not stem from or originate from this physical realm but from the realms of spirit.

We would like you to consider that every aspect of your planet, every aspect of your solar system, every aspect of your galaxy, every aspect of your universe has conscious thought intent behind it. You reside in an orderly universe with manifest laws that hold different elements in place. Because the universe is not static, it incorporates random or chaotic patterns that breathe life into it as an expression of individual 'free-will'. Each level of through creation offers space within it for variation and adaption.

To understand this principle, reflect upon your own life for a moment. For the most part, you can move around; you can think and create. These are all expressions of your thought manifesting. Yet, you cannot through your thought double the height of your physical body. This is because you are constrained by another level of 'thought' that limits your size. This limitation is no different, in some ways, to when you lock up an animal in a cage. You have the thought power to restrain the creature even if they might wish to escape. When this happens, they then need to learn to accept the limitations of the manifestation of that thought restriction.

What has this to do with the physical world in which you reside and experience? We would like you to consider that it is all an expression of different levels of thought or consciousness. Beings stand behind all its elements from different levels of awareness. By that, we mean a hierarchy exists within the universe from the humblest to the greatest. Each layer creates a platform for other layers below it to experience.

As the ancients were aware, the physical world is bound together by four primary groups of beings that have been classified under the headings of Earth, Air, Fire and Water. This grouping reflects a cosmic principle or thought construct that can be seen reflected through many other levels, such as your psychological makeup. Suffice it to say that there is a hierarchy of consciousnesses that can be grouped under these headings that is responsible for the construct of your physical world. These beings have been called by a variety of names, the most common of which are elementals and devas. They are also the angels of Christian and Islamic belief. Each group has taken on a task that allows for the manifestation of that higher consciousness that has given birth to your universe, your galaxy and your solar system, with the different planetary bodies that reside within it.

David has described his communication and work with one of these elemental beings, who is called Guerrion. As this elemental earth spirit evolves in his understanding, he will begin to appreciate other elemental beings that operate through the air, water and fire. Ultimately, he will learn how to assimilate each of these elements within his consciousness as it grows in understanding and awareness. In this process he will take on greater tasks in respect of the manifestation of the dynamic structures of your planet, for what you see manifesting on your planet, through the wind, water, fire and earth is an expression of consciousness at different levels of complexity. You can beautifully see this process in operation when snow falls, for although each flake is predominantly hexagonal, no two flakes are ever the same. We would suggest to you that each flake is an expression of an individual consciousness, that conforms to the structure of a higher level of consciousness that establishes its form.

In past times human beings learned how to communicate with the devic and elemental worlds and levels of co-operation were established in ways that proved mutually beneficial. An example from your bible is when the Master Jesus requested the storm to quieten, and it did. Nature, for the most part, is willing to co-operate and people sensitive to its manifestations will know in advance when problems might occur, such as through 'earthquakes' and similar destructive natural events. We would encourage all of you who have a sense of this other dimensional reality to work constructively with your physical world by honouring the conscious beings that stand behind it. If you can truly open your hearts and learn to love nature in all its manifest forms, it will reciprocate by filling your life with abundance in a multitude of ways. Every human being has within him or her the ability to communicate consciously with the many 'unseen' beings that stand behind your physical world. What you cannot 'see' with your physical eyes can be seen with the imaginal senses and at that level, you can learn to communicate with them and to thank them for the work they do.

Critique and Assessment

The writing up of this communication took place on two separate occasions a week apart. When I sat down to complete what had been stated the ideas and perceptions flowed in a very easy way. I sense as though I am fed information, perhaps partly when I am asleep that allows for a flow of perceptions and ideas. It, therefore, becomes hard to separate what might be mine or what might have stemmed from H-A and the group he represents. As I write this comment, I hear him say 'It does not really matter, for it is the ideas that are important. If it helps people perceive reality through a new set of eyes, then it serves its purpose.' I feel deep gratitude and humility in being able to connect to what I perceive to be a profound level of understanding.
